EuroSoTL 2017

The 2nd European conference for the scholarship of teaching and learning

Transforming patterns through the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning

Human behaviour, thinking, and interaction have a tendency to become institutionalised in traditions, recurrent practices, and routines. This tendency may save energy, appear efficient and predictive but it also risks limiting learning and personal development.

Ever since the start, SoTL has had an agenda to change and improve higher education, and this conference adheres to this call. The conference is about how SoTL can impact people and practices (or how SoTL has attempted this but failed).

The conference will address the general theme in a variety of formats.

We welcome submissions of emerging, ongoing, and finalised inquiries on how SoTL contributes to transformed patterns of learning and behaviour in and between:

- students,
- teaching and teachers,
- collegial communities,
- departments and institutions,
- leaders and managers, and
- society

Keynotes: Catherine Bovill, University of Glasgow, and Mart Noorma, University of Tartu.

Abstracts (350 words) should be submitted by January 15, 2017 through the conference website: www.lu.se/eurosoTL2017 where you will also find further details about the venue, formats, programme, speakers, proceedings, travel and accommodation.
